UC Davis Executive Leadership Program: Now Offered Twice Per Year

The UC Davis Executive Leadership Program is sought by top-level executives throughout the Sacramento region who want to adapt and thrive in the face of change and become more effective leaders. Because of the high demand for this unique training, UC Davis Extension is pleased to announce a new fall offering of the program. The next cohort will run from September 14 through October 27 and meet every other Thursday afternoon and all day Friday in Sacramento.

Program Format:
Eight interactive sessions designed to expand students’ abilities to confidently guide their organizations.

- The Leader as Communicator
- Leadership Practices to Increase Effectiveness
- Leading Innovation
- Leading Change
- Leading as a Coach
- Leading with Emotional Intelligence
- Values, Commitments and Organizational Momentum
- Leadership Case Study

360˚ Assessment
Self-awareness and meaningful feedback from others are essential to developing your capacity to lead. Program participants use this assessment to evaluate their own leadership and receive important feedback on how others perceive them as leaders.

Coaching
Coaches help leaders focus their development efforts for the greatest impact. During the program, participants receive two coaching sessions: The first focuses on the 360˚ assessment, and the second will take place once the program has ended to support achieving goals established during the program.

Learn more about the program and apply: extension.ucdavis.edu/execprog

ALSO OF INTEREST: Specialized Leadership Skills Course
Leading Through Emotional Intelligence and Coaching
Knowing how your emotions impact the way others perceive you, and how you respond based on those emotions is a significant success factor. Learning the skills of communicating with emotional intelligence will help you understand the part emotions play in communication. Building upon this emotional intelligence knowledge, you will then look at the “coaching” mindset. With an awareness of how you react and respond, you will be prepared with skills to begin coaching.

From Boeing to Coding—One Student’s Success Story

As an accomplished systems engineer for Boeing, Susan Boyland hadn’t planned on switching careers. But a work assignment involving creating a website for her team changed all of that. She discovered a talent and interest in website development and decided to take her self-taught skills to the next level.

Boyland enrolled in UC Davis Extension’s online Web Development Certificate Program and completed the coursework while juggling a busy professional and personal life.

“I liked the flexibility that the program offered due to its online format and soft deadlines,” Boyland said. “The program was very comprehensive and covered a wide range of skills needed to be successful in the web/IT industry. Most other programs I looked at only focused on one aspect or language, so I really liked that each class within the UC Davis Extension program covered a different language or web development aspect. I also really like how the AJAX class at the end combined everything that was learned in prior classes.”

Armed with a new portfolio of web development skills (and a healthy dose of optimism), Boyland began her IT-industry job search.

“The biggest challenge was definitely job hunting because of the level of experience most web development jobs require and the fact that it was a complete career change for me,” she said. “Thankfully, because of the certificate program’s comprehensive course load, I was able to land a job in the web development industry, which was my ultimate goal!”

A Faster Way to Learn: Quick Skills to Help Advance Your Career

Let’s face it, improving one’s self is never easy. It takes focus, dedication and time. Time is often the most elusive aspect to attaining your goals, as there are countless things to distract us from what we need to do. But if quickly learning a new skill—to improve your career outlook or just improve yourself—is a priority, then UC Davis Extension is here to help.

UC Davis Extension is now hosting select classes on Coursera, the world’s leading platform for self-paced, online learning. Our Coursera classes and specializations (a series of related courses that emphasize a specific job skill) are:

- Fast—The self-paced format gives you control over how fast you learn
- Convenient—Online courses let you learn when and where you want to
- Affordable—Basic courses can be taken for free or, for a minimal fee, you can upgrade and earn a certificate that verifies your skills to employers
- Highly Relevant—Courses are developed in conjunction with leading employers, ensuring that the skills you learn are in demand
- Dynamic—Your learning experience is engaging and interactive, connecting you with peers from around the world

Classes are open for enrollment on Coursera year-round. So, if you think the self-paced style of online learning is right for you and may provide the skills you need to advance your career, then we invite you to explore our course offerings online at extension.ucdavis.edu/coursera.
